Open Ocean Halls: Pacific Time

Cities by the ocean follow their own rhythm. Time is measured in partings and meetings, by anticipating and returning. Time and space are perceived differently here, in a way that cannot be counted in seconds or kilometres. 'Open Ocean Halls: Pacific Time' is a tale of the rhythm of Vladivostok, a rhythm that has been lived, is lived, and will be lived for generations.

Ships and People: The Russian-Japanese War

This exhibition features the people and ships involved at the end of the war between the Russian and Japanese empires. The city of Vladivostok and the Pacific Fleet played a vital part in this war. The ships of the Vladivostok cruiser squadron were involved in the campaigns and many of those who fought in the war were natives of the city. Personal belongings, photographs, and diary entries provide an opportunity to look at the key episodes in the Russian-Japanese War without a textbook, living their stories of victory and defeat.

You can gain entry to the museum by showing your EEF 2018 badge.

Please note that guided tours and other additional services must be paid for separately.

Arseniev's Memorial House Museum

The brick building dates from the early twentieth century. It is the only surviving house in Russia where the prominent traveller, explorer, and writer Vladimir Arseniev lived with his family and worked. Filling in the blanks on geographical, ethnographic, and other maps, he not only made a vital contribution to opening up the territory, but also created a full picture of life there through artistic works like Dersu Uzala and In the Sikhote-Alin Mountains.

Historic Milestones on the Map of Russia, from the Collection of the Moscow Kremlin Museums

This collaboration between the Moscow Kremlin Museums and the Arseniev State Museum of Primorsky Region examines the phenomenon of Russia as the world's largest nation state, a status which it has maintained for over three hundred years.

Primorsky Territory has been accorded the honour of being the first region to receive exhibits from Russia's oldest museum. The exhibition consists of splendid works of art produced in the court workshops of the Russian tsars, symbols of the country's 'power and glory'.

Visitors will see genuine world-famous masterpieces such as the 'Trans-Siberian Railway' Easter egg made by Carl Fabergé's jewellery company, as well as items which have never previously left the repositories of Russia's principal treasure house.

You can gain entry to the exhibition by showing your EEF 2018 badge.

Open Ocean Halls: Pacific Time

Cities by the ocean follow their own rhythm. Time is measured in partings and meetings, by anticipating and returning. Time and space are perceived differently here, in a way that cannot be counted in seconds or kilometres. 'Open Ocean Halls: Pacific Time' is a tale of the rhythm of Vladivostok, a rhythm that has been lived, is lived, and will be lived for generations.

Ships and People: The Russian-Japanese War

This exhibition features the people and ships involved at the end of the war between the Russian and Japanese empires. The city of Vladivostok and the Pacific Fleet played a vital part in this war. The ships of the Vladivostok cruiser squadron were involved in the campaigns and many of those who fought in the war were natives of the city. Personal belongings, photographs, and diary entries provide an opportunity to look at the key episodes in the Russian-Japanese War without a textbook, living their stories of victory and defeat.

Arseniev's Memorial House Museum

The brick building dates from the early twentieth century. It is the only surviving house in Russia where the prominent traveller, explorer, and writer Vladimir Arseniev lived with his family and worked. The previously unknown Ussurian Territory was opened up thanks to his work in various fields of science (geology, geography, toponymy, cartography, biology, archaeology, ethnography, history, and others). Filling in the blanks on geographical, ethnographic, and other maps, he not only made a vital contribution to opening up the territory, but also created a full picture of life there through artistic works like Dersu Uzala and In the Sikhote-Alin Mountains.
